DRAWS SAVINGS FROM HIS BANK AND LOSES ALL

Ten Cent Padlock Insufficient Protection to Foreigner at Donora

SOOTHSAYERS PUZZLE HIM

Hearing a report that the United States was going to war with Mexico and that all banks were to be closed so that currency on deposit could be used by the government, Mike Hurtik, a Slavok millworker of Donora drew all his savings, $935, from the Bank of Donora this week and locking it in a box with a ten cent pad lock, lost it.

With two friends Hurtik appeared at the bank asking for his money. He would not listen to the remonstrances of the banker in charge of the foreign department who told him not to fear. He drew his money, one friend drew $400 and another $700. Hurtik went to work with the money in his pocket and placed it in his locker, secured only by the cheap padlock.

Going to look for the money later he discovered some one else had proceeded him and taken it. Naturally Hurtik was much worried.

Going to Braddock as soon as possible he looked up a fortune teller whom his friends had recommended. She promptly told him a black haired man who had posed as a friend had taken the money. This puzzled Hurtik all the more, since he knew of no one answering the description. Not completely satisfied he went to East Pittsburg to another soothsayer and was told it was a light haired man who had stolen his savings.

Disgusted Hurtik came home and returned to work at the mill to save up. His intentions now, he earnestly states, is to save enough to hire a good detective. Nothing but the best will satisfy him after his experience with soothsayers.

GOVERNOR TAKES STEPS FOR SOLDIERS TO VOTE

Governor Brumbaugh Thursday night asked Attorney General Brown for legal advice as to how the troops now in Federal service can vote at the November election, inquiring about the act of August 25, 1864 and what steps will be necessary for the state to take. The governor also asked if commissioners are required and if so what should be their compensation.

In regard to the registration laws the governor wrote: "I beg to suggest that our registration and other laws relating to the elections passed since this act (that of 1864) should be examined into to determine precisely all the necessary steps to be taken in order that there may be no question about the official counting of these votes."

HOBBERY STORY NOT PROVEN; OMER PAYS

That his story was more imaginary than real appeared when Albert Omer appeared before Justice of the Peace Eise Thursday evening to testify to his experiences the night before. Omer complained of being assaulted and robbed of fruit by three young fellows. He had two arrested. Omer finally had to pay the costs, amounting to about $6.

PORK FAMINE AHEAD MEAT PACKERS STATE

Experience Difficulty in Buying Good Healthy Hogs—Sheep Not Obtainable, Though it is Possible to Get Few Lambs—Prices High

Butchers of the valley markets cannot supply pork to their customers as the pork famine is now worse than it has been for ten years. Packers cannot buy good healthy hogs at any price. Those now on the market are bought in stock yards and bring 10 1-2 cents in the rough.

Packers and distributors place the blame on shippers of hogs, who state they cannot ship healthy live pork in hot weather. In most cases a shipper counts 25 per cent loss from shipping a car load of live hogs. Shippers also figure that pork will remain at the same high price and they will be able to ship in cooler weather without so much loss.

Sheep are practically off the market. Farmers are paying more for breeding sheep in the western markets and in Pittsburg than the packers can afford to pay for slaughtering purposes.

BEST LINEUP ARRANGED FOR MONONGAHELA GAME

Manager Clyde Register of the Pittsburg Steel Products club has his best lineup arranged for the second game of the Monongahela valley championship series at Monongahela the coming Saturday. A new pitcher has been added to the string and he will do the twirling. This is Archie Shaw of the Allegheny Steel club and a brother of the famed Jim Shaw of the Washington Americans. He is considered one of the best in the business in the Pittsburg district. Harry Miller of the Allegheny semi-pro club will be on first base in the absence of Henry Wilson of Fayette City and Joe Dent, the Bucknell college lad will play shortstop. Wolfe of Donora has been signed as a new catcher. With these additions the club will remain intact. The Pittsburg Steel Products will again face Lane, the crack Monongahela pitcher. The second game is being much anticipated.

FAYETTE COUNTY PRISONERS HELPING TO REPAIR ROADS

State Highway Department Requisitions Men From Uniontown Jail And Puts Them to Work

Seven prisoners from the Fayette county jail have been requisitioned by the state highway department for use on the national pike. The men were taken under the provision of an act of assembly which allows the highway department on request to secure prisoners for employment.

The sum of 25 cents per day will be paid to the men by the county as in the case of the county road gang now engaged in clearing up roads in Jefferson township. The state will reimburse the county for the amount paid out.

S. L. Clemmer, state highway superintendent of Brownsville is in charge of the gang. Loaded in a small car and armed with mauls and shovels the men were taken to the west of Uniontown where they will be used to strengthen some decidedly weak points in the road. S. L. Topples Over at Bad News and Does Not Regain Consciousness in a Day

IS TOLD OF SON'S DEATH

Mrs. Isola Banucci of Belle Vernon fainted at 12:30 o'clock Thursday when told that her son, Louis had died at the Memorial hospital, Monongahela and has not yet regained consciousness. Doctors do not think she is in a critical condition, but they are working to bring her to.

Mrs. Banucci was at the Memorial hospital when told the news of her son's death. She toppled over. During the early evening she was brought to the home of Mrs. Emil Vernecci at Monessen to spend the night. Then today she was sent to her home.

Two years ago when her husband was killed by accident in a coal mine, Mrs. Banucci fell in a faint and did not regain consciousness for four days.

WIDOWER'S WILL DIVIDES ASHES BETWEEN 2 WIVES

The will of James S. Stocking, a wealthy real estate man and former politician of Washington county, who died at Washington Wednesday, directs that his body be cremated and that half of the ashes be placed in the grave of his first and half in the grave of his second wife. The will warns the family not to hold any kind of religious services over his remains and names a penalty if this command is broken.

RECRUITING IS STARTED BY ARMY MEN

Dr. C. P. Linn Takes up Headquarters at Monongahela—Awaits Help

NEW MEN GO TO MT. GRETTA

General recruiting for another Pennsylvania battalion that it is reported will be sent as soon as mobilized to the Mexican border has been started. At Monongahela Dr. C. E. Linn, lieutenant on the medical staff of the Tenth regiment and recently appointed a recruiting officer to be in charge of the work for this part of western Pennsylvania, has taken up his headquarters at Monongahela and is proceeding with his duties. The first two recruits to report there and enlist are Ewing W. Dennis and Harry Brubaker both of Monongahela.

Dr. Linn is qualified for receiving enlistments for any regiment or for the regular army. He is expected to make trips to different towns considered to be in his territory and there to carry on his work. This week his assistants, a sergeant, corporal and a private of the Ninth and Thirteenth regiments are expected. As soon as there are sufficient recruits they will be sent to Mount Gretna, there to be trained and fitted for border service. When they are prepared they will be sent to the border to join their respective commands.

WORK BEING PUSHED ON VESTA 6 COAL TIPLE

The Vesta Coal company is pushing forward the work on its Vesta 6 tiple above Denbo. The immense steel tiple extending from the mine opening to the river, will probably be completed early in September. A number of new houses have been erected and others will be built later in the summer. This new operation is immediately south of the Denbo baseball grounds and the people of the two towns will form practically one community.

GROUND BROKEN FOR 50 NEW HOMES FOR FRICK EMPLOYEES

The H. C. Frick Coke company has broken ground for 50 new homes for its employees on a tract belonging to it adjacent to the Hiller place of lots east of Newtown.

The houses will be built in pairs, each containing four rooms, city water, gas and electric lights. As in the custom with the Frick company, the houses will have front and rear porches and gardens.

The site is on a bluff overlooking the river and far above the smoke of the Bridgeport plant.

The company has recently added porches front and back to such of the Newtown houses as have not had them.

WOMAN AFTER THE WAR.

Not long ago the voices of some French leaders of thought were given on the probable part woman would play after the war and as was the opinion of the majority that in industrial lines, particularly, she would be a very important factor. The same condition, and in possibly greater degree, has been pointed out as regards England, says the Pittsburgh Dispatch. There the war has worked a revolution in the status of woman that years of agitation, both moral and militant, could not. Woman has taken her place in almost every conceivable line of activity while man went to war. She has shown her value to the nation in the nation's hour of need. It would be strange if when peace comes again she did not demand recognition of that value. She may be able to compel it if it is not given willingly.

Which makes more than ordinarily interesting the political activity of the Duchess of Marlborough, who has started a movement to obtain for women a share in the municipal government of London. The former American woman, who has been active in many lines before she took up politics, insists that women are peculiarly entitled to a voice in local government because that government has to do with domestic economic measures affecting the welfare of the family. She argues that the woman have demonstrated their efficiency and that they should be accorded a place among the lawmakers, in local government no less than elsewhere, although it appears it is especially in local government they are not wanted. The Woman's Municipal Party, of which she is one of the leaders, has been organized to fight for reforms affecting women and children and proposes that women shall have a hand in the conduct of purely local affairs.

"Few will maintain that Woman's position in England is the same in 1925 as it was in 1913," says the Duchess. "The war, which has awakened reverence for the heroism of men, has also taught us respect for the efficiency of women. The channels of the nation's life are being fed by women. Their quick adaptability has stood us in good stead. Even the professional pessimist has silenced his ready sneer."

It will be a different world in a good many ways after the great war is over and the work of reconstruction is under way. One result will be a greater measure of liberty everywhere, more recognition of a voice in their own affairs. And the voice of woman is likely to be heard and heeded.

"SEX ANTAGONISM."

In the midst of a vast deal of loose talk about the "antagonism of the sexes" in economics and politics, a sensible citizen named Eicheberger in a letter to the New York Times quietly and convincingly points out that there is no such thing. The very phrase is an absurdity.

"The fact is," he says, "that the average man, as well as the average woman, is united to some member of the opposite sex by stronger ties than any that exist between man and man or woman and woman. Not only does this apply obviously to seven or eight adults in every ten who are married, but it applies all along the line of family relationship. The average man has a more tender feeling for his mother than for his father, for his sister than for his brother. Favoritism in a family where it exists is nearly always between a parent and a child of the opposite sex.

"What woman will not desert her nearest chum—to whom she has sworn eternal devotion—for some mere man? What man will not give up the company of his own sex for that of the woman he loves?"

"Go to the parks, theatres, anywhere—what do you see? 'Solidarity of sex?' No. Nine-tenths of the groups you see will be associated members of the opposite sexes and more interested in each other than in anything that concerns the fate of man or woman as a sex."

So it has been from the beginning.

So it will be until the end of time. And all the economic stress and political activity in the world isn't going to change this rock-bottom fact of human nature.

Gypsies need to be watched. Not because they are gypsies or because of any evil associations with the name is this statement made, but rather because of their romantic temperament and well known proclivities. Fortune telling is extremely profitable for gypsies, who are at home with this art. Yet fortune telling is largely prohibited in Pennsylvania. The law should be rigidly enforced relative to gypsies as well as others.

Meat packers need not worry about the ability of the people to forego meat. It would not be such a hardship if we were forced to it, and with the raging prices being forced is not without the realm of possibility. The only thing probably that keeps us trapping back and forth to the nearest meat shop is the complete realization that at the best meats are not so terribly much higher than other commodities.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

School children know a great deal more than they used to. In fact, some of them, in their own opinions, at least are quite capable of tutoring their tutors.

"Those kiddies I teach are as knowing as an encyclopaedia," said a teacher recently.

"In what way," asked his friend.

"Well," replied the scholastic person, "the other day I set a problem in arithmetic: 'A rich man dies and leaves a million dollars. One-fifth is to go to his wife, one-fifth to his son, one-eighth to his brother and the rest to the hospitals. What does each one get?'"

"Yes?" queried the friend, not very interested.

"Back came the reply from the smallest boy in the class: 'A lawyer.'"

"Oh, we's all 'bout de same, 'cept Bill. You 'members my brudder Bill?"

Well, he sure has growed. Lor' miss, you jest ought to see him! So big and tall, folks all think for sure he am older dan what he is."

A TALE OF TURKEY.

Queer Things That Happened in the Name of the Constitution.

The ignorance of the Turkish masses concerning political questions, says Sir Edmund Russell, a British statesman, is the result of the revolution of 1908. The British, or rather the towns, like the peasants in the country, who have heard that the sultan had sworn to be faithful to the constitution, inquired what it was. Was it a person? Was it a law? And very few could give any clear explanation. The words "constitution" and "constitution" meant something good although they could not have said what. To some they seemed to be a law.

Two English friends of mine were motoring outside Smyrna when a number of Turkish boys set upon them and threw stones at them. The Englishmen gave chase and caught the principal offenders. The eldest was asked why he had thrown stones.

"Hurriet var," was the reply.

"There's liberty. We can do what we like now."

The Englishman replied, "Hurriet var, and I am at liberty to give you a good thrashing, am I not?"

One of the boys said yes, he supposed.

VALUE OF GOLD.

While That is Fixed, Its Price is Regulated by Premiums.

Gold is not considered a commodity in the ordinary sense of the term, but is the basis on which the values of commodities are determined. Its value does not fluctuate, but is universally fixed at $20.67 2/3 ounce or its equivalent. Its price, however, fluctuates, as in the case of premiums. Its value is stationary; hence the term premium. The difference between the fluctuation of that and the purchasing power of gold may be simply illustrated as follows:

That while its value remains stationary a premium would serve to reduce its purchasing power, to be added to its cost, but an advance in the price of commodities would operate to reduce the purchasing power of gold, taking $1 as a unit.

For instance, a dollar will purchase an article whose price coincides, but if an advance in the commodity raises the price of that particular article to $1.10 the purchasing power of gold would necessarily be reduced proportionately. Or, again, in times of adversity, commodities are cheap, the supply invariably exceeding the demand, the purchasing power of gold would then be greater than in times of prosperity, when the supply does not meet the demand and higher prices for commodities result.

There is no difference in the cost of a pennyweight of gold today from what it was ten years or more ago.—Pittsburgh Press

Force of Habit.

The late H. Cassaway Davis, once a United States senator and candidate for vice president on the Parker ticket, was a brakeman before he became a millionaire and is said on one historic occasion while sleeping soundly in the senate chamber to have dreamed that he was still guiding an unruly freight train through the mountains of West Virginia. The dream was inspired by a nearby colleague, Senator Allen G. Thurman, who blew two mighty blasts on his nose. Davis, thinking he had heard the freight whistle, seized his desk as if it were a brake and nearly twisted the thing from its moorings before he came to.—New York Mail

"Henry," said his wife reproachfully, "do you know that it was 3 o'clock when you came home this morning?"

"You are mistaken, my dear," he replied. "It was just 1:30. I looked at the clock on the church tower as I passed the corner."

"Far be it from me to doubt your word, Henry," answered his wife, "but if that is the case it must have taken you an hour and a half to open the front door."—Exchange

AMONG THE THEATRES

PALACE—CHARLEROI

Good programs of vaudeville and moving pictures were featured at the Palace theatre this week. In the photoplay program perhaps the most conspicuous feature of all was the appearance of Mary Pickford in "A Bride to Order." Other films were "Threads of Fate," in which seven stars appeared, "A Gentleman of Leisure," "The Heart of an Indian," "His Promise" and "The Missing Necklace." In vaudeville the last three days of the week Sam Gilder is appearing as the original Lone Pine star minstrel. Richard Brothers are here with their act as aerial comedians. They came to Charleroi direct from the Harris, Pittsburgh. The forepart of the week Ralph and Sue Smith gave their singing, dancing and talk act, Harris and Ritter appeared with the bits of musical comedy and The Bartanos headed their performance directing tricks of their dogs.

COYLE—CHARLEROI

A summer program that was full of strength was offered by Manager R. S. Coyle of the Coyle theatre this week, much to the pleasure of his numerous patrons. On Monday the featuring attraction was "Caprice of the Mountains." The Paramount play on Tuesday was Marguerite Clark in "Silks and Satins." On Wednesday was presented "The Flower of No Man's Isle, with Viola Dana in the starring role. "Destiny's Toy," with Louise Huff, was the Thursday drama, an unusual story being related. The regular installment of "Gloria's Romance," in which the famous Billie Burke is being starred is billed for presentation tonight as usual. On Saturday Charley Chaplin will appear in his famous characterization of "Police." Chaplin's films are making a big hit at the Coyle where they are being produced regularly in line with an arrangement put through some weeks ago.

MAJESTIC—CHARLEROI

A Blue Ribbon Vitaphone feature was produced in "The Conflict" as one of the most charming of the numerous charming photoplays at the Majestic theatre Monday of this week. Lucile Lee Stewart was starred. On Tuesday Manager W. S. Sweeney entertained with William Collier, Jr., in "The Bugle Call," and a Keystone comedy, Hank Mann in "Hearts and Sparks." Tuesday's dramas were among the most entertaining of the entire week. Wednesday was another big day. Then in the World Brady picture "The Perils of Divorce" Edna Wallace Hopper and Frank Sheridan, two of the widest known of the screen actors and actresses appeared. On Thursday "The Great Problem" a Bluebird feature of unusual attractiveness. Violet Messeraux did brilliant work in this splendid production being supported by an especially good cast. On Saturday is being announced a high-class film, "The Prince Chap."

MISSING LINKS.

Pages of Geological History That Nature Has Destroyed.

New details are continually being added by geologists to the known history of the earth, including the development of plants and animals. However, that history, which is recorded in the rocks, is still fragmentary, like a badly mutilated book. One of the great defects in the record is the Atlantic and Gulf coastal plain regions of this country is the absence of the later part of the cretaceous and the early part of the eocene chapters—perhaps eight to ten million years' time. A report by the U. S. Geological Survey discloses this missing part of the record and shows that the earth must cover a very long period of time.

It is known that at that time the continents were not about as large as and probably larger than they are now, and the oceans were accordingly smaller. Any rocks that were then formed in the sea seem to have been weathered and washed away. Hundreds of kinds of plants and animals that lived before and hundreds that lived after this great period are known, but not one which lived during the period. Strange to say, few if any of the species which existed before the unknown period lived through it.

It is like a play in which the places of one act remain the same as in the preceding but the characters are all new, and yet many of the new players resemble the old ones so much that one is compelled to admit that they are close relatives. In each of the states bordering the Atlantic ocean are layers of rock which were formed before and after the period whose record is missing. In these layers are entombed sea shells of many kinds, but apparently not one species lived through from cretaceous to eocene time.

BECKONING THE DEAD.

The Call of the Indians to Which the Sea Responded.

On the rugged coast of Washington by the Copalis sands there is a tower from which the Indians watch for sea otter. They are very eager after that same, for the hide of one of those creatures is worth all the way from $500 to $2,000. Two young Indians were watching one day when they saw a sea otter off in the surf. Two shots from their rifles killed the otter, and then they rushed down to their surfboat. The sea was heavy, and when they were out some distance from the shore their boat broke in two over a comb, and the men were thrown into the sea.

One of the Indians drifted ashore on a piece of wreckage. The other, although a splendid swimmer, was drowned. The news soon spread to the reservation, and the Indians from far and near came to the beach and stood on the sands, silently beckoning to the sea to give up its dead.

It was a solemn, impressive sight—the stalwart, rugged, copper colored men and women standing at the verge of the sea foam asking the sea by the motion of their hands to send the body ashore. For three days they waited and beckoned, and then a dark object was seen drifting into shallow water. Sometimes it was buried completely from view by the heavy surf; then it was seen again a little nearer, and so the body of the dead Indian came ashore at the call of his tribesmen.—Youth's Companion.

The First Great Bank.

The first great bank in the world was the bank of Venice, established in 1157 when the queen city of the Adriatic was the head of the commerce of the western world. At that time the great current of the trade between Europe and Asia passed through the Persian gulf and the Red sea to Alexandria, Egypt and was carried in ships across the Mediterranean sea and through the Adriatic to Venice, where it was distributed to various parts of Europe. Venice was a sort of autocratic republic, founded and supported by its merchants, who were famed throughout the world for their wealth and reliability. They founded their bank, which was guaranteed by the government and was held in high credit in all the great cities on the routes of trade.

Happiness.

Money will not procure happiness, but happiness will help procure money. Happiness makes every task a pleasure and every worker optimistic, and an optimistic worker at a pleasant task can perform it in no way but well. Happiness is not only its own reward, but it is an irresistible magnet which is forever drawing unexpected rewards. And happiness can know no evil; evil happiness is a contradiction of terms. Happiness is a religion in itself.

He who has happiness has jumped just over the very goal of life.—Judge.

The Language of Cash.

"Say, pop."
"Go on. Spill it."
"What does money say when it talks?"

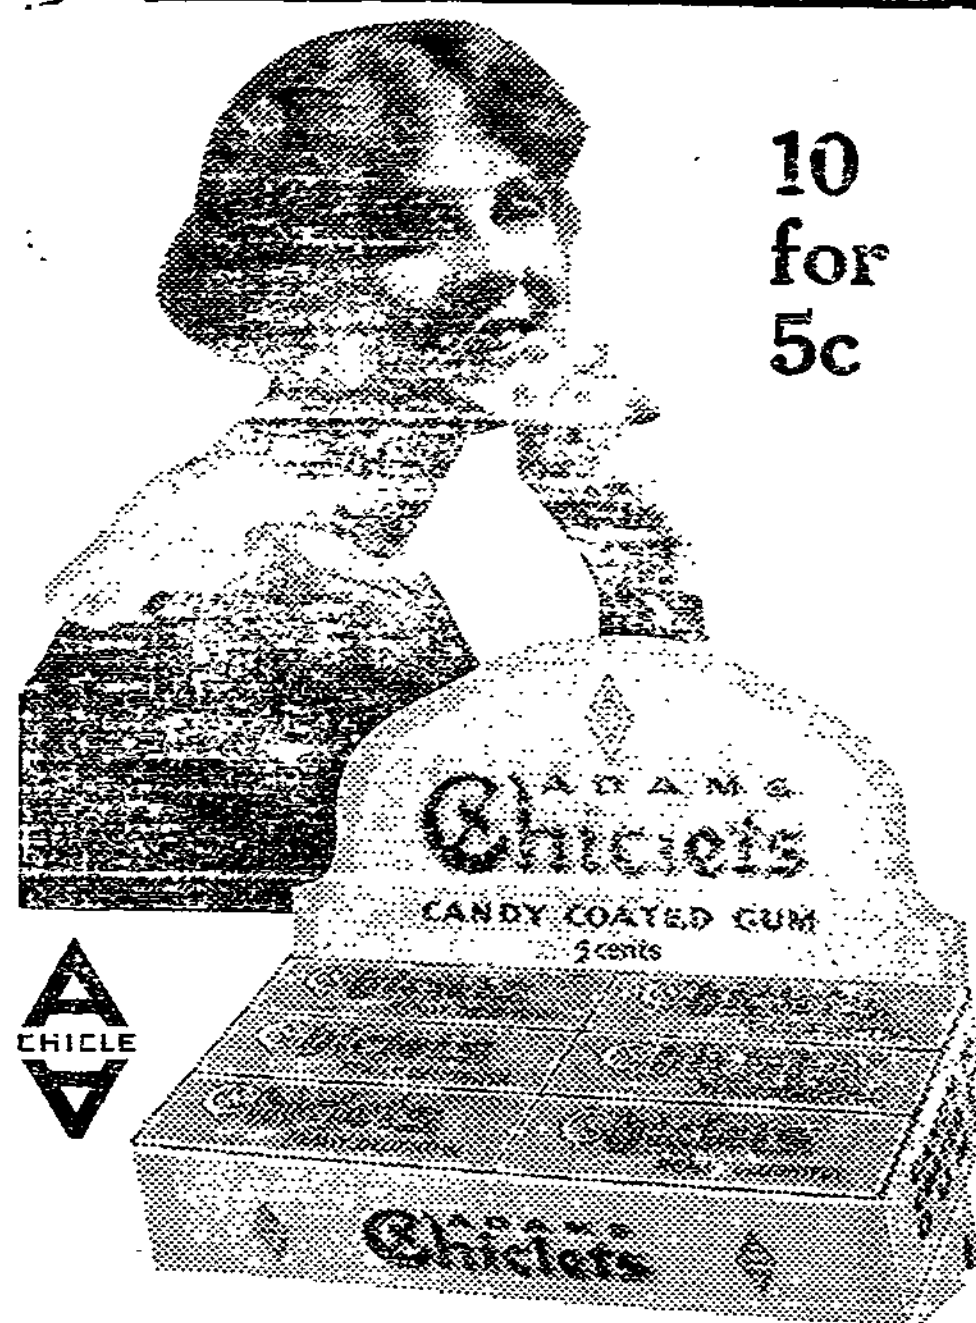

"Whatever is necessary to make the mare go. Run on out now and play with the other boys."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

An Ungracious Remark.

"Here's a magazine offers prizes to ladies for telling how they helped their husbands make money."

"If they were telling how they helped spend money," snorted her ungallant husband, "wouldn't take first prize."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

While self-confidence is important, the confidence of other people will also help some. —Nelson, Gable

FORGIVING JOHNSTON

A Story For Independence Day
By ESTHER VANDEVEER

"Grandpa, tell us a story, a story about a big war. Everything is about war nowadays. Tell us a Fourth of July story."

"I'll tell you about a man of peace who got mixed up with those who were bent on fighting. He was my grandfather, and he was a member of the Society of Friends. They are commonly called Quakers. My grandfather lived in Philadelphia, which was settled by Quakers. His name was Forgiving Johnston, and he was one of the pillars of the Society of Friends, whose principles were that if they were attacked forcibly they must not resist. He was looked up to as a shining example of peace and patience."

"During the Revolutionary war Philadelphia was occupied for a good deal of the time by the British troops. Grandfather Johnston lived in the suburbs, and since he raised chickens and garden truck, as well as working a dairy, he was often plundered by the British soldiers, who came out from the city to forage on the country. He was a strong patriot, but as a Quaker would not resist the foragers. Of course his nonresistant principles became known among the soldiers, and since they could rob him with less danger than a fighting man they confined their attention to him till they had well nigh stripped him of everything he possessed."

"His children were obliged to bear all this, for none of them dared oppose him, but finally there came a time when they banded together to stop the plundering. There were Pardon and Daniel, his two sons—Daniel was my father—and Patience and Prudence, his two daughters. The boys conspired together that the next time a party of redcoats came on to the premises they would drive them off. Of course they could not do this with staves, they must use firearms. They made loopholes in the wooden walls of the barn and gathered there a stock of muskets and ammunition."

"The first thing the old man knew he heard firing in the direction of the barn. Looking out through a window, he saw half a dozen soldiers chasing his chickens about and puffs of smoke emanating from the sides of the barn. He understood what was going on and, stepping out on to the roof of the front porch, called out in a loud voice to his sons."

"Boys, cease this firing! It is better that every chicken in the yard should be taken than one drop of blood should be drawn."

"But either the boys did not hear him or if they did they paid no attention to his command. One of the soldiers fell, and his comrades ceased chasing the chickens and turned their attention to those in the barn. The troopers had short guns with them, for they were mounted men, and they began a fusillade, which drew a more rapid fire from my uncle and my father in the barn."

"The old gentleman, when he found that he could not stop his boys fighting, stalked back and forth on the porch roof, struggling with his desire to enter the fray himself. After a time he went into the house and brought out his rifle, but got the better of his pugnacity, stood the gun up against the house and resumed his walk. It was said that his lips moved in prayer to be saved from the sin of fighting."

"One of the girls, Prudence, was in the barn with her brothers, and she was firing through a loophole. The Johnstons' ammunition was running low, and if not replenished they would lose the fight. Prudence volunteered to run the gantlet to the house and bring them more powder and lead, urging upon her brothers that the soldiers would not shoot a woman. They finally consented, and, emerging from the door, she ran like the wind to the house."

"The old man saw her coming and surprised what for. He shouted to her to run fast and at the same time, forgetting himself, used unseemly language to the soldiers, who were firing at her. Presently she stumbled and fell. Her father seized his rifle and, leaping from the roof, ran toward the soldiers. Possibly he thought it not quite so sinful to use his gun as a club as to fire it. At any rate, he ran in among the soldiers, his blows falling on them with the rapidity of lightning and the weight of a sledgehammer. Several of them fell with broken skulls, and the rest took to their heels."

"Now, my grandfather having driven them off, there was no need for him to commit a further sin by following them. But he did, and, since he could run faster than they, he kept well up with them and brought his rifle down on one of them with such force that the stock was shattered."

"The fight being over, the boys and girls went to the assistance of the wounded and with difficulty prevented their father from dispatching them. However, they carried them all into the house and attended to their wounds, nearly all of which had been given them by Mr. Forgiving Johnston. "Those soldiers who got away reported the trouble, and an aide to General Howe went out to the farm to look into it. He reported that the men had got just what they deserved."

"My grandfather never got over forgetting his principles of nonresistance. He could not after that endure his name Forgiving, so he changed it to Forgetful."
